Freckles

Will a year or olive oil on the skin hasten a quick tan and prevent peeling?

Nothing will hasten tanning. Tanning is the mobilization of pigment producing cells of the body reacting only to the stimulus of light. The brunettes have more pigment than the blondes and therefore tan quicker and more profusely. Blondes have less pigment and tan unevenly—freckles and some blondes have no pigment at all to speak of and burn and peel and redden and suffer over and over again. There is no way to change these fundamental differences in skin's pigmentless blondes should be protected from sunlight if they are to avoid reaction—and sometimes severe illnesses result from sunburn.

Vitamin evaporates in the sunlight and has no effect on tanning or peeling. Any one who interferes to some extent with the absorption of light and therefore protects against sunburn and subsequent peeling. An oil with some dark pigment may filter light sufficiently to make tanning or peeling. Any one who filters process, avoiding the unpleasant preliminary stage of burning. Sensitivity to sunlight exists. It takes two forms in one: one reaction—burning and sweating occur at the point of contact. In a second reaction, which is delayed, occurs in the other there is burning, redness, secretion and sweating. It is a delayed reaction, however, more pronounced the next day and lasts a week. Both reactions can be prevented. A tan can be prevented. A tan can be prevented. A tan can be prevented.

company of families. I made up my mind quickly.

"The asked Julia to have dinner with me somewhere—he thought we'd like to go to Fieldstone Inn if I can borrow a car."

"Take mine," she said, as I had hoped she would. Fieldstone Inn is an ultra-respectable roadside on the Chicago road. I thought she looked surprised, but not suspicious. "Where is Julia?"

"In her room. Thanks for the car—you're sure you won't be wanting it this afternoon?"

"No. Stay as long as you like. Only be back before dark. These roads around here are not safe."

It was in my mind that she did a good bit of driving after dark, but I did not say so. I watched her start down stairs and thought that for all her careful grooming, she looked like a little more this morning. Which might be merely the result of last sleep.

Julia was sitting on the side of the bed staring at the door when I came in. I gave her the damp cloth and, while she scrubbed her face, told her about our lunch date.

Nostalgia

"Sweet!" she said huskily. "Now I won't have to keep to my room and answer dumb questions. I wouldn't want them to know about this. They're so touchy—way Mimi has promoted this marriage as if her life depended on it. Not," she added with instinctive fairness, "that she could have brought it off without their cooperation. I'm not fool enough to blame her."

While she made herself presentable, and while we drove the ten miles to Fieldstone Inn I encouraged her to talk about them—about Jeff and Sandra, and about Mimi. I learned much that had been vague in my mind before—perhaps more than Julia knew—she was telling me. More, certainly, than I had sense enough to recognize until later, when I began putting the pieces together.

There was only one thing she omitted, and I don't know yet whether she simply didn't think of it, or whether she kept silent from a sense of loyalty to her father and Mimi. For it was not until a long time later that I learned about Mimi—where Colonel Pennant met her, and how he came to marry her. And that piece of information was to make clear much that puzzled me.

She talked now wistfully, with nostalgia of the years just concluded at West Point. Colonel Pennant on duty at the post; Jeff a cadet, Mimi a bride; Julia at home week ends and vacations from boarding school.

I had been there one never-to-be-forgotten June Week the year Charlie graduated; but I had not known Julia then. It was a strange feeling to remember that week—the hops, the parades, the baseball games, the horse shows. High-spirited days through which I had moved with Charlie beside me. As I know now that near me, crossing my path again and again, part of that glittering pageant had moved Julia, with Jeff by her side; to know that I had walked past the old brick quarters that faced up the Hudson, had probably read the neatly lettered sign, LT. COL. PENNANT, on the doorstep—the quarters where Mimi had come as a bride, where Jeff had lived every moment of his free time during his first three years at the academy, until after his first-class summer, when Sandra had come to the Pennants for a visit and Julia had lost him to her.

Julia took me inside those quarters now, showed me a homelick, scented plume dodging into them like a spent fox to cover; resting awhile, not saying much, gathering courage to go forth again.

"I'll never forget that first Christmas," she said. "I brought three girls home from school and we had a party every night. The plebs aren't permitted to leave, you know, and they try to make up for all the fun they've been missing. Every time we turned around we ran into a mob of them. Those girls went to town. I'm telling you. Even Mimi had herself a time. She was twenty-eight or nine, but she didn't look much older than the rest of us. I was fifteen, and they let me

Old Age Pension Rolls Reach New High of 1,210 in County

Increase Here Part of Marked Gain Throughout State; July Payments Here $27,752.

An increase of 46 cases in old age pension rolls in Marion county this month will bring the number of cases here to the highest point since last December, Everett B. Grigsby, manager of the Marion subdivision of the state division of aid for the aged, reported today.

Grigsby said 1,210 residents of the county will receive pensions this month as compared with 1,164 in June and 1,157 in July last year. The jump of 46 cases within the month represents the most precipitous increase in recent years here he believes.

County's July Total

For July the county's pensioners will receive $27,752.27 as compared to $26,880.37 for last month and $25,242.10 for July, 1938. Mr. Grigsby's records show the number of cases averaged about 1,229 last fall out then the increase was gradual.

The average pensioner in the county will receive $22.93, 5 cents more than the average pension in the state. Last month the

British Teacher in Kenton Fears for Kins' Safety

Special to The Star

KENTON, O. July 17.—Torn between fear for the safety of his loved ones in England and a desire to provide for the safety of himself and his wife in America, Norman F. Hadden, Kenton High school English teacher, during the past term today went ahead with plans to return to his home in Macclesfield, England, late in August.

Positions have been offered him to teach English in a girls school near Los Angeles, Calif. to teach in two Ohio schools and one in Michigan. He would like to accept one and remain in the United States. Mr. Hadden declared on a brief return visit to Kenton after a tour of the west. But there is the matter of his English citizenship and the constant menace to his loved ones in the home country.

My mother's hair turned gray overnight as she waited alone in the darkness of her home in England while Nazi bombers and British fighter planes battled overhead for four hours, the exchange teacher explained. His father is in another part of England in government training center learning to operate machines for the production of armaments. His 10-year-old son is still in their part of England. Mrs. Hadden's brother, Frederick, is in the U. S. Navy, having been evacuated from Dunkerque, France after serving with the expeditionary forces in Flanders and is still in that part of the beleaguered island.

If I am exiled here to give His Majesty I would like to leave my wife here in the safety of your country. It is my loved teacher and as I talked of those dubious plans for the future.

News Behind the News

Strange Atmosphere of Affected Nonchalance Prevails at Democratic Convention.

By PAUL MALLON

CHICAGO, July 17.—This outing of the Democratic party could hardly have been less casual if the Democratic leadership (considering the White House reform encouragement) had decided to take a silent walk on Mr. Roosevelt.

A typical convention event was the boom for Mr. Bascom Timmons as vice presidential candidate. Timmons is a Washington correspondent, a good friend of Vice President
Garner and his proxy in the national committee.
News-men sitting around the convention tables, praying for excitement, decided, probably because Timmons is the only interesting character on the scene outside of National Chairman Farley, to start a vice presidential boom for him. It was a matter of retribution. Practically everyone else was running, so why not Timmons. A band and a parade were organized and Mr. Timmons was true to the occasion. He announced in a premature acceptance speech he would receive no contributions over $5,000,000, while anyone was looking.

Now Mr. Timmons is only a convention bystander, a man who has merely met the wash of the waves as they come, but the mere existence of this wave should inform you this is the most unusual of conventions.

Nothing Wrong
No one likes to throw rocks at a parade, especially a national parade, but it is clear from the activities of all the leaders that something is wrong here somewhere. It seems almost as if the school Democratic politicians who know how to run conventions, had decided that inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt manifest a preference for his politically unlabeled commerce secretary and friend Harry Hopkins to run this hot picnic for him, they would just let Hopkins go as it unham-pered to see how far a job he could do of it. Not a single official statement was issued by anyone of authority the first few days of the convention. The only press conferences were those of Mr.
Farley and these have been pathetically reported. (The pizzazz of the Farley conference remarks was one that he "often wondered who is running this convention.") Brains of the White House publicity staff, Mr. Charles Michelson, have been most active in ushering debutantes about.

If there were not so many grave events going on in the world, it would make a much more pleasant story to report.

You will catch the point from the following collection of inner events.
Ex-Secretary of War Harry Woodring has the widest Democratic smile of the outing. He says he has been receiving 800 letters a day favoring non-involvement in Europe and has had to open two extra offices in his Kansas home town to take care of the mail since his mysterious retirement from the Roosevelt cabinet. Leon Henderson, the reform economist of SEC and the national defense commissioner, tried to smoke out Mr. Roosevelt after the last meeting of the NDC in the President's office. None too subtly, he suggested he was a member of the Marching and Chowder club which was going to have its quadrennial camp meeting in Chicago shortly.
His fellow members would be asking questions, Henderson told the President, and he would like to know the answer.

"Leon," responded the President, "have you ever been flashing?"

"Yes," said Henderson with a knowing smile, "I was fishing yesterday and I did not catch any more than I did today."

The senate influence, which was practically extinct at Philadelphia, is in command of the platform.
About twelve senators are running the show of collecting party principles.

The official inside story being circulated among the delegates is that Mr. Roosevelt informed one of his officials last week he would keep his elbows out of the vice presidential situation. Hull had declined, Douglas might be stopped by the convention. Wheeler could be drafted despite denials to the contrary. Douglas and Louis Johnson, assistant war secretary would be acceptable, he said specifically. There was never such an absence of worrying and thinking at a national political conclave. Mr. Roosevelt's promise to do all of both for the collected leaders, has relieved this gathering of practically any burdenome responsibilities.

A caustic commentator (Republican no doubt) at the Farley press conference growled aloud the suggestion that something should be done to make the convention look less like a meeting of the reichstag.

The convention will be dragged out to five days so hotels can get even, or better yet, Gamewell claim 55 to 70 votes for president on the first ballot, if there is to be a ballot, but only 55 to 65 per cent of the Texas delegation will stay with him beyond the initial venture.
Hopkins, the presidential

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, July 17, 1930.
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Haughton returned to their home in Columbia after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barringer of Gurley avenue.

Mr. D. B. Dutton and sons Jack and Wayne and Jerry Neil of Huntington, W. Va., were visiting Mrs. Dutton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Tobin of Sugar street.
Mr. and Mrs. Amos Burgess of New York City were visiting Mr.
Burgess's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Knappen-berger of Hane avenue.

Mrs. E. L. Alexander was hostess to the Cosmos club at her home on Olney avenue.
The Joy-makers club of Salt Rock township met with Mrs.
Stella Borland at her home west of Morral and arranged for a picnic at Lake Idlewild park at Kenton on Aug. 10.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, July 17, 1920.
The Marion County Duror Jersey Breeders' association was formed with election of John H.
Clark, president; A. J. Loudon-slager, vice president; and E. B.
Fidler, secretary and treasurer.

W. D. Stark, deputy county clerk of courts, completed a record of divorces cases in Marion county for the year ended June 30, 1920, showing that 154 suits were filed during the year.

C. B. Ufford, for three years assistant superintendent of the Marion county schools, was elected superintendent of the schools in Medina county.

Applications for dates for visiting delegations following the official notification exercises set for July 22 were being received at Senator Harding's campaign headquarters on Mt. Vernon avenue.
No definite engagements had been made however, with the exception of the one already announced, that of the Mansfield delegation on Saturday, July 31.

Senator Harding had completed the draft of his speech of acceptance and was giving it the final touches before distributing advance copies to the press.
Charles N. Fowler, former congressman from New Jersey and former chairman of the house banking and currency committee, called on Senator Harding. A letter was received by Mr. Harding from the entire staff of the Delta Independent, newspaper published at Delta, Colo., assuring him their solid support in the campaign. "We believe there is not a pricier who has followed the trade for a quarter of a century who has not taken joy in your nomination," the Delta group wrote. Another visitor at the Harding headquarters was Judge C. O. Hunter of Columbus, who brought with him a group of English clericalmen visiting in this country. They also had a short visit with Mrs. Harding. Also a visitor at the headquarters was Dr. A. E. Sharf of Washington, who stopped while en route to Chicago.

IN THEIR bewilderment many people in those first dreadful days thought they must have been betrayed, but nearly every single case of so-called treachery was found to be nonsensical. Of course, there were a few Quis-lings, but the experience of Quisling himself is the best proof that he had no support in his treason. He had been in Berlin the week before the long prepared attack, returning on the 10th with a bodyguard of young Norwegian Nazis who turned out to be almost his only followers.

When he was put up by the Germans to form a puppet government he lasted only two days.
Not a single man he appointed to his cabinet was willing to serve.
Not a single functionary turned up when he ordered them to take the oath of allegiance. He invited the heads of organizations—employers, labor leaders, ship owners—to a conference, and not one appeared.

The truth is that there is less of a fifth column in Norway than in any other country. Hitler works the fifth column idea for all it's worth. He wants to create the impression that there are thousands even millions, of Nazi sympathizers everywhere.

On The Record

Dorothy Thompson Addresses An Open Letter to Senator Pittman.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

MY DEAR Senator Pittman:
There are a hundred thousand children waiting on the be-beaved little island of Great Britain to be evacuated to the United States, here to stay for the duration of the war. There are many times the necessary number of homes ready to receive these children, here in America. But the moving of a hundred thousand children from a dangerous place to a safe place seems to be beyond the competency of the "world's greatest democracy." It is really?

The British say that they have ships to send them in but that they cannot afford convoys.
They dare not send them without convoys because Great Britain's ships are likely to be sunk otherwise by enemy submarines. They cannot use the convoys because they are needed to protect other ships, ships carrying food for the forty-odd millions of people on the islands and carrying raw materials with which to defend themselves. It is reasonable that they cannot afford to convoy children.
The convoys are needed to protect all the other inhabitants of the islands from starvation and defeat.

But these children, Senator, could be brought here without any convoys at all, provided they were carried in our ships, which are neutral. They could be brought provided we would send ships for them—ships which would carry no contraband cargoes and would simply transport the children from Great Britain to these shores.

OUR ships, at present, are not allowed to go into war zones.
That provision is in the neutrality act. But this provision of the neutrality act was passed in order to prevent our ships from being sunk by German submarines, thus involving us in difficulties with the German government.

It is terribly difficult for any government, and terribly difficult for our government, to know exactly what is the right thing to do, this thing is here at hand, and its solution is not difficult:
it is completely simple. There is no problem of feeding these children. The government will not have to do it; ordinary individuals will do it. Enough food is wasted in this country every day to feed all the children of Great Britain.

ernment, and terribly difficult

interesting than some of the Americans who hang out in Nassau, spending the day in the country. If he gets sick of it

Christians the old story. That Judy

MR. SENATOR, in a time when it is so difficult for any government, and terribly difficult
actly what is the right thing to
do, this thing is here at hand,
and its solution is not difficult:
it is completely simple. There is
have to do it; ordinary individ-
Britain.

THE Duke of Windsor, who is quite dem-onstrably a man of the world, is sure he would have found them more
who hang out in Nassau, spending the day
at the end of the day, he will find it interesting. It is our turn to him to give Christians the old story. That Judy blunderbus may still be haunting the joint.

MR. SENATOR, in a time when

Ribbon is a blend of not two, or five, or twelve...but 33 separate brews, from 33 separate kettles.

Each brew is as fine as choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of experience can make it. Then all 33 are brought together in perfect balance.

It's the BLEND that Bottles the Best
